Common Core Literacy Scaffolding Questions

Developed by: Chris Edwards, Ed.D

Note to teachers and parents: The standards listed here are taken from the Common Core Standards: Grades 6-12, Literacy in History/Social Studies, Science, & Technical Subjects from the subset standards for grades 6-8. The standards listed here are 6-8.1-6.8-10. These Common Core Standards can be viewed in greater detail at this website: http://www.corestandards.org/ELA-Literacy/RH/6-8/

Some states have decided not to adopt the Common Core standards, but the new state standards are uniformly similar. Teachers who choose to use these questions in a state that has not adopted Common Core standards are encouraged to apply their own state standards to these questions. Teachers who choose to use these questions for grades other than 6-8 can find all of the Common Core standards at: http://www.corestandards.org/ELA-Literacy/.

Teachers, please note that these questions are designed only to provide a very basic literacy scaffold and to provide examples. There is plenty of room for you to add your creativity and use your expertise to develop "why" questions and to help students make connections to other texts.

The questions below should be answered using a complete sentence and with textual evidence from the reading. The questions for the Preface are answered as examples.

Use the glossary to help with the words.

Even after making it to the major league with the Pirates, Roberto remained an enigma to many fans. They did not know just how good he might be. Many of the white reporters continued to ignore him, and Roberto had not played as well as he could. At the end of his first season, one newspaper said his hitting remained a "question mark" (p. 42).

Read these excerpts from a Pittsburgh Post-Gazette article titled The day that baseball died: Happiness was Roberto Clemente and then he was gone, published on Dec. 31, 2012. What does this article indicate about how Roberto Clemente's fans remember him and how does this article connect with what you read in All About Roberto Clemente? Provide an example of a "hero" from sports or elsewhere who elicits similar feelings in you in your answer. Include a clear thesis, one piece of textual evidence from the book, one piece of textual evidence from the article, and an example from your own life in your answer.

If you were a kid growing up in Pittsburgh 40 years ago, you probably feel a little different when New Year's Eve rolls around from the rest of the revelers out there. It was on Dec. 31, 1972, that Pirates Hall of Fame right fielder Roberto Clemente died in a plane crash while delivering relief supplies to earthquake-ravaged Nicaragua.

In those pre-Internet/Twitter days four decades ago, news didn't travel as fast as it does now so most of us didn't hear of the tragedy until the next day, New Year's Day. I was lying half-awake in my bed, trying to ignore the bright, mid-morning sun peeking through the curtains, when my 9-year-old brother burst into my room to tell me what he had heard from one of his neighborhood friends.

"Roberto Clemente is dead! He died in the ocean," he said.

Clemente was my favorite player. I remember bringing to my first Pirates game at Forbes Field a homemade sign that said "Happiness is Roberto Clemente." I was sitting down the first-base line hoping he would notice my sign but it was much too small for him to have possibly seen it. That was OK, though, because I was seeing him in person as he made those graceful basket catches in right field. I would attempt, unsuccessfully, to imitate Clemente's unique way of catching the ball when I was in Little League.

The next year, when the Pirates moved to Three Rivers, my dad took me to a game against the Mets on my birthday. The Bucs lost but Clemente hit a home run, pulling back in his patented spring-loaded batting stance and uncoiling a whip-like stroke that sent the ball soaring over the right-center-field fence. It felt like he had done it especially for me.
